People live much longer than most other animals, so human childhood also lasts a long time. Unlike baby animals, human children need many years to learn how to live on their own as adults. As children's bodies grow, so do their minds. This growth is called child development. It happens in many ways with the help of toys and games. Even schools use toys and games to teach kids. Children enjoy playing with toys.

A toy can be a simple ball, a game, or an expensive machine that uses the latest technology. Years ago most toys were made from wood and cloth. Today the most common material is plastic. Toys date back to ancient times. Scientists often find toys when they dig up old ruins. These include ancient balls, dolls, and toy wagons and boats.
